Kraft Heinz FOODSERVICE

1880s

Heinz lands on Australian shores

The story of Heinz in Australia began in the 1880s, when American miners working in the goldfields introduced the taste of Heinz products to Australians for the first time.

1935

Heinz begins production in Australia

Given the company's origins, it was only fitting that bottled horseradish was the first product out of the company's original site in Richmond, Victoria. The next product to roll off the line was baked beans in tomato sauce, quickly followed by canned spaghetti.

Heinz swings behind the war effort

With WWII causing a global shortage of tin, Heinz had to stop supplying canned goods to Australian shoppers. However, the company was able to get enough tinplate to supply nearly 12 million cans of tomato juice, Irish stew, beans, spaghetti, soups, and potatoes to the armed forces.

1950s - 1960s

Boom times for Heinz

After the austerity of war, Australians fell in love with Heinz products all over again. By 1956, production had increased to 12,600 tonnes with 79 products being made.

Kraft Heinz

1909

Big dreams

With a vision to deliver cheese products direct to grocers' doors, James L Kraft and his 4 brothers established the J.L. Kraft and Bros Company in 1909. Within 5 years, thirty-one varieties of cheese were being sold throughout the USA.

1926

Kraft Enters Australia

Kraft enters the Australian market, and begins manufacturing cheese products.

Pineapples at the heart

Golden Circle began as a grower cooperative, with the pineapple cannery commencing production in 1947 in Northgate, Queensland. Pineapples have been at the heart of the Golden Circle Brand since its earliest beginnings.

Joining the Heinz family

Golden Circle joins the Heinz family bringing a wealth of Australia heritage and experience.

2015

'Krafty' Move

Heinz and Kraft joined forces to become the fifth largest food and beverage company in the world. The combined knowledge and experience from Heinz, Kraft and Golden Circle equate to a powerhouse of brands and products ideal for foodservice business throughout Australia.

2018

Kraft Heinz acquires Cerebos

Kraft Heinz expands their extensive portfolio by acquiring the Cerebos brand. With a wide range of iconic products such as Saxa Salt, Gravox Gravy, Fountain Sauces and Foster Clarks custard, Heinz becomes an even greater powerhouse in the Foodservice Industry.

— Ken Fullerton

FOURTH-GENERATION PINEAPPLE FARMING LEGACY THRIVING IN QUEENSLAND MOUNTAINS

For over a century, this small family business from the Glasshouse Mountains region of Queensland has been harvesting pineapples. The Fullerton family has developed their legacy into something truly special, Ken Fullerton is a fourth-generation pineapple farmer; his son also works on the farm part-time as he pursues his studies at university.

Fullerton Farms is one of the pineapple growers for Golden Circle's pineapple products range. This mountain region of Queensland is a great spot for growing pineapples due to its healthy volcanic soil and warm weather.

Pineapple tops are planted twice a year. The first crop in July to September, with an estimated one million pineapple tops planted. The second planting is from November to January, where they plant another 1.25 million pineapple tops. Both crops are harvested two years after planting. After the first pineapple from each plant is picked, a second pineapple is grown on the same plant over the next 18 months. The tops off the grown pineapples are planted back in the ground for future years harvest. The farm harvests around 4.5 million pineapples each year.

Each pineapple plant produces two or three pineapples in its four-year lifespan. The first pineapple will be ready within 2 years and the second harvest (ratoon crop) another 18 months later, will produce either one or two pineapples. Diligent planning, and care means Ken can work out the dates for ripening and spread it out across the harvesting windows.

Preparing the freshly picked pineapples for shipment takes no more than a few hours. Every day, the bins are loaded onto semi-trailers for the short journey from Ken's fields to the cannery, where the canning in some instances can take place the same day they were picked.

Ken credits his family and their many hardworking staff for their success. "I am proud of our team we work well together with great communication, dedication and hard work."

FIELD TO FORK

Wattie's grow and harvest the largest area of peas in the Southern Hemisphere.
Colin & Annette Maw have been growing peas for Wattie's for over 20 years.
They are now helped on their annual 20 hectare pea harvest by grandsons Ollie and Archie.

There is a surprisingly short window of 2 days, during which each crop is at peak eating quality for harvest – we can't harvest too early and we can't be late. There's a real science in getting this right and years of expertise to pick peas at the perfect time.

It's also critical to get peas snap frozen as quickly as possible. After harvesting they're immediately washed, blanched to retain their colour and flavour, and frozen – from field to snap frozen in under 4 hours!
